Searching for:

an online method for buying and distributing digital content (i.e. music or games or software or movies) from a merchant website whereby the buyer/shopper selects a product and places an order and the buyer also specifies a desired delivery timeframe/period; in turn, the website sends the digital content to the buyer and incorporates a program, which will erase/delete the content after a time period/frame that is longer than the delivery period specified in the buyer's order.

other search terms

"try before buying" with specified time period or

"time bombs" with specified time period
